

Redwood Resource Management specialists within the telecommunications industry

Expansion

Following on from our successes within Project Delivery, supplying individuals and teams to the Telecommunications industry, Redwood Systems has developed the Business Model to include Resource Management.

How we operate well to meet your requirements

Our unique international experience ensures that we only provide the right consultants with the right qualifications at the right time, giving a greater return on investment.

Our track record means we can responsibly manage the provision of contractor resource for the duration of the project, whether it is 1 contractor for 1 day or a team of 40 for 3 years. Our combination of internal and external resource in conjunction with the size of our company allows us to offer this unusual degree of flexibility, ensuring clients only commit to minimum contract duration.

Individuality

Whether the need is for a complete implementation or upgrade or an individual component, Redwood Systems have expertise in all aspects of the telecoms development lifecycle. We have a unique understanding of technical requirements due to our commitment to specialise in this industry. This gives us the added advantage of being able to filter out and supply only professional personnel who exactly match your requirements, providing an immediate, extremely competitively priced solution. In this respect, Redwood Systems' individuality sets them apart from standard recruitment agencies.

Case Study – Major UK Telco

The client's initial requirement was for an additional 2 – 3 BA's to help support the existing teams working on a major implementation of a new CC & B application. Redwood Systems' in-depth knowledge within the Telecoms industry and our ability to only supply professional resource has allowed us to successfully fulfil a further 20+ requirements to include:

- o Application & Configuration Specialists
- o Project Managers
- o Specialist Application Business Analysts
- o Data Analysts
- o Testers

Redwood Systems has maintained an excellent relationship with the client, working closely with them to ensure our supplied Resource fit well within their existing teams.

Our attention to detail in understanding precise requirements saved the client time and effort and led to further appointments in other areas of the business.
